

“The Getaway Girl®”

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
(863) 224-6326-p or
Info@GirlsGetawayGuide.net

Orlando Travel Expert Featured in Woman's Day Magazine

ORLANDO, Fla. (May 9, 2011) - While reading the May 2011 issue of Woman's Day Magazine's article on Girlfriend Getaways, you may see a name you recognize. Casey Wohl, known as The Getaway Girl®, is an Orlando-based TV and radio travel correspondent, as well as author of the Girls Getaway Guide: Leave Your Baggage at Home® travel book series.

The article highlights the importance of Girlfriend Getaways, why women need them, ways to plan them and how to not feel guilty about enjoying them. Wohl was interviewed by the magazine in January the day after she returned from her own Girlfriend Getaway to London and Dublin. The article begins with Wohl's unique story of personal and professional heartache and how Girlfriend Getaways helped her cope with the most difficult time in her life.

“After a divorce and getting fired from my job, I was depressed and felt like a complete failure,” Wohl said. “Within a few months, I went from married with a great job to single with no job and no income. It was a very difficult time for me and traveling was my therapy.”

Today, Wohl is a Girlfriend Getaway and travel expert who is featured on TV, radio, online and in print, such as FOXNews.com, CBS Radio, Better TV, The Daily Buzz and Parenting Magazine. She has served as a travel spokesperson for companies and destinations, such as American Express, Aruba, Dove Visibly Smooth, Expedia, Orlando/Orange County Convention & Visitors Bureau and VISITFLORIDA. She also speaks to groups, such as eWomenNetwork, All About Women and the Florida Public Relations Association, on topics of Career Reinvention and Public Relations/Marketing.

For more information, visit www.CaseyWohl.com.